Nestled in the verdant folds of El Herrojo Alto, Benahavís—where the hills roll with a studied indifference and the Mediterranean glimmers like a secret too delicious to share—stands Villa La Toca, a home of such studied elegance and architectural intelligence that it seems less constructed than conjured. Designed in 2021 by the illustrious Ames architects, this contemporary marvel is more than just a residence—it is an ode to the art of living well, the kind of place that whispers sophistication rather than shouts it. Spanning a generous 555 square metres of indoor living space, and accompanied by an additional 530 square metres of sun-drenched terraces, La Toca is a veritable labyr...
